

Sociology

Geneva's Sociology program introduces students to the dynamic and complex world of people, equipping them to understand social theory particularly as it connects to the everyday social life of communities. Each portion of the program is connected to a real world experience and special attention is given to the unique contribution Christians can make as servants of Christ.

With only 33 required credits in the major, Geneva's program is incredibly flexible and interdisciplinary. The major enables students who desire to become a sociologist or use their sociology foundation in another job field to tailor their education to fit their personal strengths and goals by choosing a minor or second major.
