Updated 10.7.19 ADG

- Students are registered and billed through Geneva- both for their CCBC and Geneva credits.
- Student work their academic advisor to coordinate those schedules, but all bills and payments are made to Geneva College (exception: flight costs).
- Students need to take at least 6 credits here (per semester) and need to have at least 12 credits (per semester, between CCBC and Geneva) to be considered full time and eligible for aid.
- Students will be charged per credit for Geneva courses ($930/credit in 19-20) and per credit for CCBC (see <http://www.ccbc.edu/Tuition> for details, student is charged based on permanent legal address and state of residency).
- Flight costs are paid for separately. Students who need flight instruction will set up an account with CCAC and the estimated total cost of plane rental and instructor cost are listed below. Dr. Higgs, the Dean of Aviation at CCBC can best assist if you have additional questions about details. Students can contact Geneva Student Financial Services for information about loan options if needed.

- According to the CCBC student residency policy, at the time of registration for classes, the student must show proof of residency. Examples are: Valid driver’s license, Voter registration card, Proof of payment of local wage tax or school tax, Lease or proof of purchase of a permanent independent residence. If required, other documents determined and approved by the Director of Enrollment Services. We recommend checking with them directly closer to the time of your enrollment in CCBC credits or flight hours to make sure that policy would still stand.
